DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the “right to exclude” granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Rejection 1: Claims 6-8 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 4-7 of copending Application No. 10/584,785 in view of Boelt et al (2003/0220530), claims 10 and 11 are rejected the same further in view of Gussow et al (4,558,168). Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the conflicting claims do not disclose using an extractive distillation for separation of the dehydrogenation product and that the butadiene is selectively converted to butenes as called for in claim 10 and 11. However, Boelt discloses that paraffin and olefin can be separated by extractive distillation [0033]. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the conflicting process by separating the dehydrogenation product by extractive distillation since it is expected that any method used for separation would yield similar results. Gussow discloses that butadiene can be converted to butene(s) (the abstract). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the conflicting process by selectively hydrogenating the butadiene to butene(s) to arrive at the applicants' claimed process if butene(s) is desired.

Rejection 2: Claims 6-9 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 5-10 of copending Application No. 10/584,783 and claims 10 and 11 are rejected the same further in view of Gussow et al (4,558,168).

The conflicting claims disclose a process substantially the same as the applicants' claimed process except that the conflicting claims do not disclose optional steps as called in the claims. However, these steps are optional.

Rejection 3: Claims 6-9 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 7-18 of copending Application No. 11/718,814 in view of Boelt et al (2003/0220530). Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the conflicting claims do not disclose using an extractive distillation for separation of the dehydrogenation product and that the butadiene is selectively converted to butenes. However, Boelt discloses that paraffin and olefin can be separated by extractive distillation [0033]. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the conflicting process by separating the dehydrogenation product by extractive distillation since it is expected that any method used for separation would yield similar results.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
